Curriculum can be improved much better. It would be beneficial if practical aspects are added more and also given more significance and importance instead of just adding them to the curriculum because a lot of other things i.e., developments, researches etc are happening people are learning wide range of skills and the best designed curriculum from the institutes like MIT's. Focus more on the knowledge implanted into students than that of marks they have got. I am saying this because I always observe much significant difference in all aspects when comparing lower tier colleges with the top tier colleges. Thank you.

Questionnaire on Curriculum Design – PVP20 Regulations

1. Does our course structure include all the essential courses for making a student employable/industry ready? Please mention any additional courses to be added, if any

I find the presented course structure to be covering all the essential courses for making a student employable/industry ready. At this time, nothing additional comes to mind

2. Does our course structure include courses related to emerging technologies? Please mention any additional courses/tracks, if any.

Considering that courses covering Data Science and Machine Learning are being offered, I find the course structure to be well built. A potential suggestion would be finding space to educate on “programming with security in mind” as part of “Cyber Security” related offerings.

Expecting potential security holes during the initial stages of software development is as you can appreciate desirable but regularly overlooked where speed of development and/or efficiency take(s) priority. Microsoft's security team publishes a series on promoting “Rust” over “C++” for systems programming and Linux kernel development team and Google brought Rust into news in the recent times.

3. Does our curriculum cater to the needs of a student who wants to choose a specific professional career (MS/MBA/Research/Entrepreneur/ Any other)?

Goals of the curriculum to train in technical (MS/Research) track as well as in managerial track (MBA) seem well served. I fail to see how the entrepreneurial track is being encouraged with the given information. The risk-taking entrepreneurial path is indeed something that lacks encouragement when compared to full-time roles as I recall from my days in PVPSIT. Any efforts along that route should give us an edge.

4. Does our curriculum suits to the requirements/expectations of industry with a strong foundation w.r.t problem solving abilities/creative and innovative ideas to implement for the benefit of society?

The special place given to courses on “problem solving techniques” (ES1, ES3) is something that surprises me in a good way!

5. Does our curriculum include the courses that inculcate ethics/moral values in their professional life?

Yes

Present Curriculum is Very Good Curriculum. No changes needed.

Please make students to have more awareness on the current requirements of the recruiting companies. Thankyou.

More Alumni meets and more involvements

Should be according to the industry needs like along with the application of ML and AI in our core topics and also relative to Competitive exams like GATE, ESE, ISRO, DRDO.
