About the Topic/ Activity:

Lt. Dr. M. Dhadurya Naik, Associate NCC Officer at PVPSIT, addressed the newly admitted first-year B. Tech. students, emphasizing the importance of the National Cadet Corps (NCC) in holistic student development. He warmly welcomed the students to the institution and congratulated them on embarking on their engineering journey. Introducing himself, he explained his role in coordinating and guiding NCC-related initiatives at the college.

In his address, Lt. Dr. Naik highlighted that NCC goes far beyond academics, serving as a platform to build character, discipline, and resilience while promoting students' physical and mental well-being. He elaborated on the core objectives of NCC, which include:

- Character Development – nurturing integrity, confidence, and responsibility.
- Leadership Training – fostering the ability to guide teams and take initiative.
- Physical Fitness – improving stamina, health, and endurance through regular drills.
- Patriotism – instilling national pride and a spirit of service.
- Social Awareness – cultivating empathy and responsibility toward society.
- Career Opportunities – creating pathways in defense services and other leadership roles.
- Camaraderie and Adventure – promoting friendship, team spirit, and adventurous pursuits.

To give students a clear understanding, he provided insights into the range of NCC activities, including physical fitness drills, trekking, mountaineering, and camping, which build stamina and teamwork. He also highlighted the community service aspect, such as cleanliness drives, blood donation camps, awareness campaigns, and disaster relief operations, which give cadets opportunities to contribute meaningfully to society.

The session also included experience-sharing by senior NCC cadets, who spoke about how the program had helped them enhance their leadership abilities, discipline, time management, and confidence. They described the excitement of participating in national-level camps, adventure activities, and social service, which enriched their college life and created lifelong memories.

Lt. Dr. Naik concluded his address by encouraging students to actively participate in the NCC programme, assuring them that it would not only add value to their academic journey but also shape them into responsible, patriotic, and confident individuals prepared to face future challenges.
